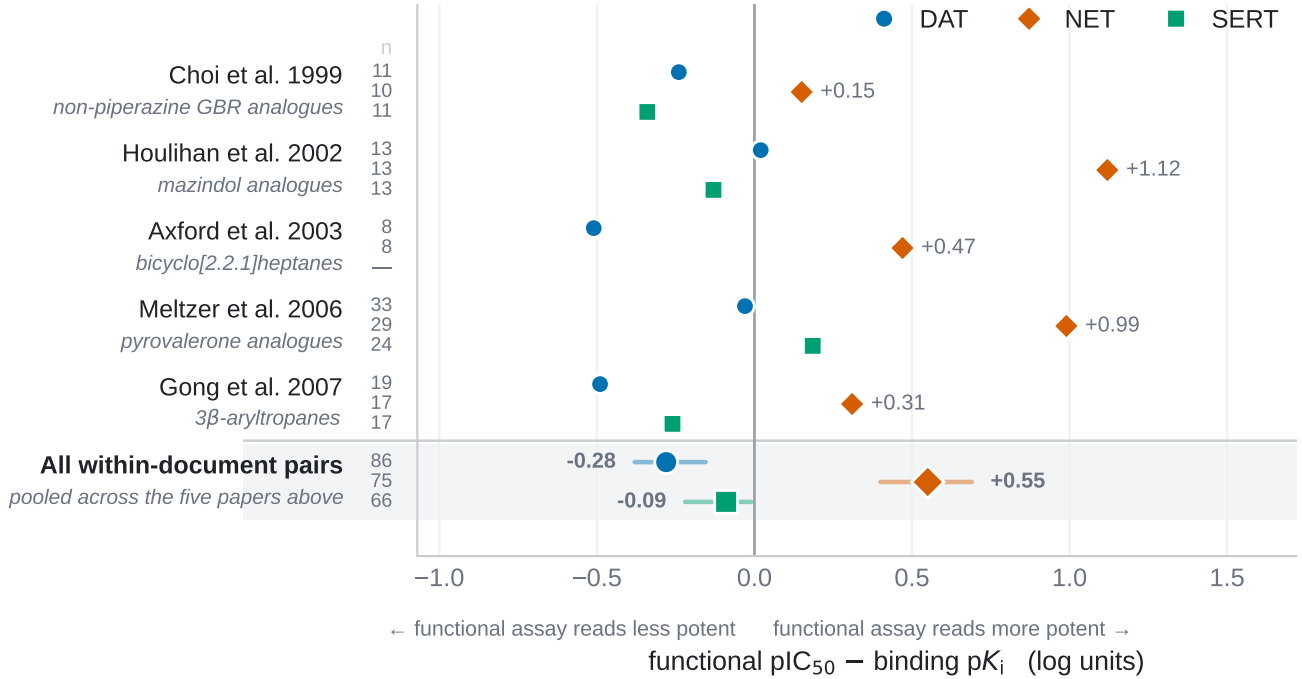
Within a single paper, the binding–functional gap appears at NET and almost nowhere else


Each row is a source that measured both assay types on the same compounds in the same laboratory, so no between-study calibration difference can contribute. Bars are 95% bootstrap intervals where the underlying values were available.